Required Reading:
Gurda, One People, Many Paths: A History of Jewish Milwaukee.
Janik, A Short History of Wisconsin.
Nesbit, Wisconsin: A History.
Readings on Wisconsin Jews distributed in class.

Course Description: How have Jews impacted the history of Wisconsin, and how did Wisconsin shape the lives of those Jews who settled here? This course examines the experience of Jews in Wisconsin from the early nineteenth century to the present day. While the Jewish population of Wisconsin remained small until the nineteenth century, many Jews who immigrated to America during the Great Migration of 1881 chose to settle in Wisconsin. We will study the development of Jewish communities large and small, from Milwaukee and Madison, to Appleton, Racine, Kenosha, and even towns like Rhinelander and Arpin. The course will pay particular attention to the individuals and communities that made the Wisconsin Jewish experience unique.

Course Requirements: All students are required to attend each lecture and attendance will be regularly taken. Grading will be based on three examinations given on the following dates: October 3, November 7, and December 15. Each exam will constitute 20% of your final grade. Two 5-6 page essays will also be due on October 17 and December 5. Each paper will amount to 20% of your course grade.

Course and University Policies: Students who need special accommodations due to disability are encouraged to submit their requirements in writing no later than the second class meeting. Any students with religious observances that would involve missing class are asked to inform the instructor prior to the absence. Accommodations will be made for students called to active military service. Incompletes will be granted in unique circumstances, but students are encouraged to complete all course requirements by the conclusion of the semester. Discriminatory conduct, such as sexual harassment, will not be tolerated. Academic misconduct, cheating on exams or plagiarism, will not be tolerated and may result in a failing course grade. The student can also address any further questions or concerns to the instructor.
